1. [REDACTED] handed the enclosed list and overlay to me for transmittal to you. He took a personal interest in your request, as you will gather from the obvious amount of work that was put into answering it. He asked me to say to you, [REDACTED] will always be glad to help in the preparation of town plans and other geographic reports." He wonders if you hold a later edition of the Gdansk telephone directory than he does (1950-51).

2. It was unfortunate that Dan's telephone numbers were garbled. Nevertheless, the time he spent here seemed well worth while. [REDACTED] are very glad for the chance to just gossip on common problems, for they seldom get away from headquarters. They welcome just the sort of sessions Dan had. Since [REDACTED] was also so helpful in arranging things for him, I believe that to top the whole thing off a note of appreciation would be good.
